Immigrants Are Bringing Typhus Germs Into U.S.

Typhus Is America's Greatest Danger, New York Health Officer Says.

IMMIGRANTS ARE BARRED EXAMINATIONS IN EUROPE

Once Disease Gets Foothold It Will Sweep Over Entire Country.

By Harold D. Jacobs
By United Press Leased Wire
New York.—The greatest menace confronting the United States today is the possibility of a typhus plague, according to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner of New York City. The disease is being kept out of the country and so far the only known cases are those of immigrants detained on an island in New York bay.

The danger is very real, Copeland said in an interview with the United Press Saturday, unless federal, state and port authorities immediately combat the influx of immigrants from the typhus infected districts of Europe. Following his recommendation to President Wilson that all immigration from these disease ravaged areas be stopped, Dr. Copeland issued an order requiring all trans-Atlantic passengers arriving here to pass a rigorous health examination before admission. This became effective Saturday. Similar action was taken by the New Jersey health authorities in this port.

"If typhus is permitted to get a foothold in New York, the entire country would be exposed to the greatest plague in its history, a situation beside which our recent influenza epidemics would be nothing," Dr. Copeland said.

"Next to the bubonic plague, typhus is the most dangerous communicable disease known. The death rate ranges from 20 to 50 per cent; that of influenza is negligible in comparison. Should typhus get a start in this country it would claim a million victims before it would be curbed. It would sweep across the country like a gigantic prairie fire. Industry and social life would be paralyzed. The country would become as a huge desert. One might estimate the possible deaths by the fact that typhus has claimed 5,000,000 in Russia alone in the last few months. The common carrier of the disease is the typhus louse. But once the disease becomes epidemic it appears to be communicable by almost any means.

"We can avert the possibility of such a calamity befalling the country if we get together and stop this flood of immigration from central and southern Europe. Such a step together with ordinary sanitary precautions would eliminate danger we now face."

Boston Is Careful.
By United Press Leased Wire.
Boston.—Immigration officials here Saturday said a more rigid examination of immigrants would be made following reports from New York that several steamers had changed their courses and were headed for Boston to land their passengers here, thus dodging New York's restrictions against typhus.

All immigrants will be detained at this port until there is no doubt of their freedom from disease, it was announced. Precautions similar to those in New York will be taken here.

Watertown Lawyer Hunting New Job
By United Press Leased Wire.
Madison.—The Supreme court Saturday revoked the license to practice law of Julius H. Geweko, attorney of Watertown, Wis.

The revocation followed a complaint filed by the grievance committee of the Chicago bar association and investigation by the law board of the state. Geweko appeared in person before the Supreme court in person before attempting to defend himself admitted the charges and revocation of his license followed.

The Chicago bar association had filed charges in the Illinois Supreme court against Geweko for alleged embezzlement. Geweko appeared before the court and requested that his license be revoked. Later he came to Watertown and began practicing at Watertown.

IMMIGRATION BILL WOULD LET IN GERMANS
Washington, D. C.—Opposition to the Bilingual Immigration bill developed in the senate Saturday on the grounds that it would admit to this country 125,000 Germans a year.

The bill would limit the number of immigrants from any country to five per cent of the number of natives of that country already here.

SIR AUCKLAND TAKES THINGS TOO SERIOUSLY

No Possibility That Anti-British Feeling Here Will Result in War.

LOOKS BAD ON SURFACE

Irish Agitation and Big Navy Talk Doesn't Reach Higher Officials.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1921)
Washington, D. C.—Whatever passed between the American correspondents in London and Sir Auckland Geddes in their confidential talk relating to the possibility of a war between the United States and Great Britain, all Washington is sure that an exaggerated importance has been given to the incident and that if Sir Auckland has any idea that the relations between this country and England have reached a critical state, he was perhaps been misled into taking seriously many of the anti-British demonstrations in the United States.

There is no denying the existence of an anti-British feeling right here in congress. There is no denying that our government departments have frequently had friction of a more or less disconcerting kind with British officials. Moreover there is no denying that British public opinion is building false hopes if it thinks the Harding administration will feel any more kindly toward a cancellation of war debts than did the Wilson administration.

Sources of controversy exist but anybody who tries to trouble to go beneath the surface here will find first of all that government officials as well as members of congress consider another war of any kind in the present generation an absurdity, if not an impossibility and that they look upon the published suggestion that America and England are treading the "path leading to war" as about as accurate a reflex of the true situation as the statement of future conflict between America and Abyssinia.

Irish Question
But aside from such absurd consequences as war, there are unquestionably factors of growing importance in the relations between the United States and Great Britain which Sir Auckland Geddes recognized while he was here and which in the interest of friendship between the two countries are not being camouflaged where Anglo-American questions are frankly discussed.

First and foremost in the situation in Washington is the influence of the Irish question. Englishmen resent American criticism on this subject but so long as there are Americans of Irish descent in the United States, just so long will there be speeches and even bitter feeling on the part of members of congress representing districts where those Americans of Irish origin reside. As for a precedent, these Irish sympathizers point always to the fact that at a time when America was in the throes of civil war, England went further than America has ever gone in the Irish controversy when she recognized the belligerence of the confederacy.

What is happening on the Irish question isn't particularly new to the present generation either. It is not so long ago since the Democratic national convention adopted a plank expressing sympathy with the aspirations of the Boers in their conflict with the mother country. The records are full of American expressions of sympathy with liberals and independent movements in all parts of the world. The cause of Ireland will continue to be agitated in hope that moral force will persuade the British government to give Ireland autonomy but the suggestion that the United States may some day employ physical force for any such purpose is characterized as ridiculous even by the most active of the Irish sympathizers in our government.

Not Aimed at Britain
To read the dispatches about the building of an American navy "at least the equal of any other power," the far-away observer might think the general board of the navy and the committee of congress were really aiming at Great Britain, but that isn't true. The naval policy of the Republican and Democratic administrations is tending to coincide in the sense that all parties agree America must enter a disarmament conference with just as powerful a hand as anybody else in order that reduction of armament may be really begun. Heretofore the powerful nations have refused to reduce armament and naturally the nations of lesser strength have followed suit.

But there is nothing in the discussion over armament which threatens good relationship between the United States and Great Britain. An agreement on naval armament is fully expected by the leading men of our government as an initial example to all other nations. Irritations over trade and such things as cable communication will no doubt continue but nobody here considers the suggestion of war between the two English speaking countries as anything but the remotest contingency and certainly no issue thus far has been presented which is in any way susceptible of such a serious consequence.

WANT TO FIRE N-P OFFICERS IN DAKOTA

Recall of Governor Frazier and Attorney Lemke Sought by Opponents.

By United Press Leased Wire
Bismarck, N. D.—Opponents of the Non-Partisan league administration were expected to determine Saturday whether to move for a recall of league leaders who hold office. Causes Friday night and Saturday were expected to bring plans to a head.

There is strenuous opposition in the ranks of the Independent Voters' association to a recall initiative at this time, it was learned. If a majority votes a recall it may be delayed until spring, it was said. One object would be to permit the banking situation to adjust itself and the other would be aimed to stage a recall referendum when the farmers are tied up with spring plowing and planting.

Recall of Attorney General William Lemke and Governor Frazier was demanded by their opponents following a move by the state industrial commission of which both are members to force banking institutions to clear indebtedness to the state owned bank. Opponents of the league declare the move will wreck 200 state banks holding deposits of the state bank.

C. K. Gummerson, correspondent for a Non-Partisan league newspaper at Fargo, was barred from the house of representatives late Friday when he refused to divulge sources of information which charged lobbying in the house.

SCHOOLBOYS ATTEMPT TO LYNCH 10-YEAR-OLD MATE

By United Press Leased Wire
Longmont, Colo.—Authorities today investigated the attempted lynching here Friday of James Rush, 10, by more than a dozen of his schoolmates whose ages range from 10 to 14. Rush was attacked by his playmates in the schoolyard, a rope placed around his neck and the would-be lynchers drew him off the ground. A patrolman rescued the boy. Rush, it was learned, was accused of being a bully by the other boys.

Dark Days Are Ahead For Army Of Job Holders

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—The "order of cheerful spenders of public money" is to be one of the harshest "logos" in evidence, Senator King of Utah declared in a speech to the senate on economy in government expenditures. "Thousands of members of the order have been to see me, written to me or called me up to try to have me help save their jobs which are threatened by Republican promises of economy in the new administration," said King who is a Democrat.

OBSOLETE WARSHIPS TO BE AIR TARGETS

Congress Considers Plan to Prove Efficacy of Modern Naval Craft.

Washington.—Resolutions directing the secretary of the navy to turn over to the army air service obsolete warships and ordering the army air chief to drop bombs on them to test the efficacy of aircraft against naval vessels were introduced Saturday in the senate by Senator New and in the house by Representative Anthony. The resolution set forth that no conclusive tests of the sort have as yet been made and that such experiments might radically change the future policy of aircraft development and warship building. The need for economy which demands that the allocation in the expenditure be made to produce the most effective provision for the national defense is cited as a further reason.

One obsolete battleship, two obsolete destroyers and two obsolete supply ships are to be turned over to the army as targets, under the resolution. Secretary Daniels already has arranged for a former German battleship to be bombed from the air.

BANDITS USE TRUCK TO HAUL AWAY LOOT

New London.—The G. A. Vandres store here was broken into by robbers Friday evening or early Saturday morning and goods valued at $3,000 were taken. The thieves made their entrance through the back door of the store. Footprints and auto track marks were found leading up to the back door where it was loaded. Authorities have sent to Milwaukee for bloodhounds.

New London city officials and the G. A. Vandres Co. have offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of the robbers and recovery of the goods.

WANT JUSTICE SECTION TO MAKE COUNTRY DRY

Washington.—Consolidation of prohibition enforcement work under the department of justice will be proposed by republican leaders in congress early in the Harding administration, it was learned Saturday. The present system of dividing prohibition enforcement between the bureau of internal revenue and the department of justice has been under fire in congress.

GERMANS HURL WAR BLAME IN KAISER'S FACE

Mr. Hohenzollern's Interview Gets Sharp Reaction From "His People."

SOCIALISTS ARE ANGERED

Charge Wilhelm Wanted Peace Because He Was Too Cowardly to Fight.

By Carl D. Gross
By United Press Leased Wire
Berlin.—The interview with the Kaiser caused the greatest sensation throughout Germany Saturday.

The widest variance in opinion was expressed. Former advisers of the Kaiser defended his attitude as the "peace lord," while others treated his statements with ridicule or anger. Count Von Reventlow, in an interview with the United Press, expressed regret that Wilhelm had become the object of worldwide dissension. He declared that his former emperor was right in saying he "never willed the war."

"During the days before the outbreak of hostilities, he struggled against war," declared the count who was the leading military critic in Germany.

"This is clearly proven by remarks he wrote on the margin of the government's proclamation, 'He went to war discouraged and in fear of the role England might play.' Friedrich Stampfer, editor of the Vorwarts, declared that 'it is in accordance with the well-known tactlessness of the former Kaiser that he living abroad and speaking to a foreigner, should insult the German people.'"

Unjust Accusation
"The social democratic party voted on August 1914, for the war credits asked by the government and maintained this attitude during the war."

"The party has been unjustly accused abroad of following Wilhelm's policy thoughtlessly. The fact is it participated in the defense of its country not to aid in any annexation plans but to save the German people from just such a peace as provided in the treaty of Versailles, which if forced would result from a German defeat."

"Therefore, no one in Germany or abroad will believe the Kaiser's declaration that the socialists betrayed their own country."

"The Kaiser is still obsessed with the idea that he exists through the grace of God, but the German people are thankful that they are no longer 'blessed' with him, Enrich Dombrowsky, German author, wrote in the Tageblatt.

Afraid to Fight
"It is characteristic of the spiritual and mental disposition of the Kaiser that he seeks to blame the war and the collapse of Germany on others. He forgets that the foreign policies of his regime, his rattling speeches and his vain provocations, the sword he pointed up to his people, he gave himself completely to Austrian diplomacy."

"Perhaps the Kaiser did not want the war—his nature was far too weak and fearful for it—but it was his inconsiderate actions that brought it about."

"He always scorned the socialists as a foreign body. He never tried to draw the working classes into cooperation with the state through a conciliatory policy. Both inside and outside the German borders he always encountered the greatest mistrust. Dombrowsky is the author of 'German Leaders of Yesterday.'"

17 POLITICIANS HURT BY BOMB EXPLOSION

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago.—Police Saturday searched for the man who last night threw a bomb into the center of a ward political meeting and injured seventeen men. Two of the men nearly had their legs torn off. Several others were crushed in the ensuing panic. Police said the bomb was due to national politics.

Girl Doesn't Stop Talking For Seven Days

By United Press Leased Wire
Waukegan, Ill.—Physicians here were puzzled Saturday over the case of Miriam Rubbed, 8-year-old daughter of a wealthy department store owner here, who has talked constantly for one week.

During that time she has not slept, it was said, except for two hours Monday night. During her sleep she continued to talk.

Her conversation is rational for that of a child. She talks constantly about dolls, dolls' clothing, school and dancing.

Doctors say the child is in good health and are unable to explain her condition. One theory advanced was that the talking spell is a forerunner to sleeping sickness.

HUGHES WILL BE ALL SET WHEN HE TAKES NEW OFFICE

Reorganization of State Department Will Be Discussed With Harding.

By United Press Leased Wire
St. Augustine, Fla.—Reorganization of the entire personnel of the state department and the diplomatic service will be discussed at the conference President-elect Harding is to hold with Charles E. Hughes here shortly, it was learned Saturday.

The intention is to have as many appointees as possible decided upon before March 4, so that the new administration can begin to function at once in its foreign affairs.

Hughes, it is understood, has already discussed international matters casually with a number of people who assume he would be appointed secretary of state although so far as is known, he has carefully avoided committing himself in any respect, even as to whether he would actually be appointed.

David Jayne Hill, former ambassador to Germany, is being mentioned for under-secretary of state. He was urged earlier for the secretaryship. Henry P. Fletcher, former ambassador to Mexico, is also mentioned in this connection, but it is believed more likely that he will take one of the important diplomatic posts, possibly Rome, which he is understood to prefer. There is a possibility that he may be sent to Tokio.

Friends of John Barrett, former head of the Pan-American union, are active in urging Harding to send him to Mexico.

GOT WRONG VIEW OF EDUCATIONAL BILL

By United Press Leased Wire.
Washington.—Opposition to the Smith-Towner bill providing for a national department of education, comes chiefly from Catholic organizations throughout the country, Senator Smith, Georgia, charged in the senate Saturday.

Smith declared the Catholics had received the false impression that the bill would interfere with the rights of parents to send their children to parochial schools.

"There is not a line in the bill," he said, "that interferes with the right of the parent to select any school for his child that he desires."

Smith said the bill was designed to reduce illiteracy and promote Americanism by providing federal aid to state education.

By United Press Leased Wire.
Houston.—Eight masked men kidnapped E. I. Hobbs, former Houston attorney, on the streets of Alvin, a town south of here, according to reports.

A sheriff's posse which started in pursuit, lost the trail and returned to Alvin. Hobbs was kidnapped in Houston last Saturday night and tarred and feathered and ordered to leave Houston within three days. He went to Alvin last Monday.

RUSSIANS FIRE ON YANKS

Communists Endeavor to Cause Breach Between U. S. and Japan.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels today cabled Admiral Strauss, commanding the Asiatic fleet, for a report on dispatches from Tokio that five American sailors had been fired upon in Vladivostok. The Tokio report said one sailor had been wounded.

An inquiry about the reported attack on the sailors also was made by the state department of the American consulate at Vladivostok.

Unofficial reports that a party of five American sailors had been fired on in Vladivostok by Russian communists in an effort to provoke an open break between the Japanese and Americans there were read here with great interest.

The United States is believed to have questioned Japan's right to occupy Vladivostok in its note protesting the killing of Lieut. Langdon. The present administration, however, is expected to hand the whole situation over to Harding for adjustment.

GIRL'S TESTIMONY HARD ON HATFIELD

First Day's Trial Shows Defendant Had Threatened to Kill Sleuths.

By United Press Leased Wire.
Williamson, W. Va.—Testimony by Sid Hatfield, police chief, threatened the lives of Baldwin-Felts detectives shortly before the Matewan war last May, marked the first evidence taking in the murder trial Saturday.

The state plunged into the prosecution of the slain police chief with the murder of Albert F. Felts and six other detectives when evidence taking began in circuit court here.

John McDowell, Felts detective, described the battle. Between four and five hundred shots were exchanged in the five minutes' fighting he said.

Elsie Chambers, daughter of Reese Chambers and close relative to two other defendants, related a telephone conversation she listened in on at Matewan. Sid Hatfield had called the Williamson sheriff asking warrants for the Felts detectives, she said.

"We'll kill them before they're left town," the witness said Hatfield declared. The call was made from the store of C. C. Testerman, mayor of Matewan, and one of the victims of the battle, Miss Chambers said.

SQUARE DEAL IS ALL RAIL UNIONS WANT

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago.—Modification of the national working agreements and reduction in wages will not be opposed by railroad unions if railroad owners can show that modification will not be unjust and unreasonable to employees, according to rail union leaders here Saturday.

"Railway workers seek no special privilege," said B. M. Jewell, president of the railroad shompen's union. "They are entitled to a square deal and they should not be expected to accept less. Through their organization they are ready at all times to make changes in wages, rules and working conditions when such changes are found to be reasonable."

Railway executives Saturday made public a demand that they plan to raise wages of all employees. Their plans, it was stated, are to be known to wages of unskilled railroad workers only.

APPLETON IS MODEL FOR OTHER CITIES

CLOTHING PRICES AT LOWEST POINT

University of Wisconsin Wants Milwaukee Convention Reveals True Situation—Prices 40 Per Cent Lower.

Appleton's chamber of commerce is attracting the attention of the University of Wisconsin, and is likely to be placed in the limelight by a former Appleton woman who has watched its progress since its organization less than a year ago.

This is revealed in a letter received by Miss G. Corbett, managing secretary, from Miss Almore L. Scott, secretary of the department of debating and public instruction of the University extension division, Madison. Miss Scott desires information concerning the chamber, its method of organization and operation, and the nature of the service it is doing. She also seeks copies of Community Betterment.

This material, she states, is to be included in proposed package libraries on commercial organizations, to be sent about the state. She believes the record of the Appleton chamber is so good it will set an example for many cities without a commercial body.

Miss Scott says she takes especial interest in Appleton because it is her former home.

"I have watched the newspaper with interest," she writes, "and I am proud to note what the chamber of commerce and the Appleton Women's club are doing."

Miss Scott has also manifested interest in the movement for a policeman for Appleton. Valuable material on the subject collected by the university extension division has been sent to the Women's club for consideration.

ers on a reduction both in cost of material and in wages. The material went down but wages are maintained at the former figure. The manufacturers announced they will stand by their price, however, and take a loss if necessary. They will chance a later reduction.

"This condition means that any prices asked by clothiers now will be rock bottom," Mr. Thiede said. "Every store has been obliged to go through its stock and mark the goods at replacement value regardless of what it cost. It is necessary to operate on this basis and start anew to build up business. People hesitate to believe that this condition is true and many are still reluctant about buying, but this is the exact status of things as revealed at the convention."

The convention was the largest ever attended, because retailers throughout the state have come to realize the value of the association. Mr. Thiede remarked. Its especial value lies in protecting the retailer against unfair legislation.

TWO APPLETON DEBATE TEAMS LOSE TO RIPON

By a 2 to 1 decision, Appleton debaters lost to two Ripon teams Friday evening. The Ripon negative team won from the Appleton affirmative at the high school and its affirmative team won from Appleton negative at Ripon. The question was "Resolved, that the Esch-Cummins law provides the best solution of the present railroad problem."

H. S. Bonor, C. E. Eckert, L. J. Burr and C. F. Hammen were the members of the Ripon negative team. They remained in Appleton last night and left for Oshkosh Saturday morning.

Appleton's affirmative team was composed of Edna Becker, John Ryan and Ralph Mullenix. The negative team which went to Ripon was composed of Geraldine Rammer, Donald Kurz and Stanley Lowe.

SCOUTS SHOWED ABILITY IN CHURCH DEMONSTRATION

Demonstrations were staged by boy scouts of troop No. 8 in connection with the community night program Friday evening in the First Congregational church. E. R. Henderson, scout executive, spoke briefly explaining scout anniversary week and urging more men to enlist for leadership in scout work.

The boys exhibited signaling by the Morse and semaphore systems and demonstrated first aid and good turns in a semi-comic fashion. Harry Leith named the 12 scout laws and explained the meaning of each. The events were announced by the Rev. G. E. Stuckney, scoutmaster.

An educational weekly on safety first was shown in moving pictures, followed by "The Hoosier Schoolmaster." Special music was rendered by a ladies' trio and quartette.

1,100 BOYS HEARD HEALTH TALKS HERE

Frank R. Sherwood, of the state board of health of Madison, left Saturday morning for his home at Lake Villa, Ill., for the week end. Next week he will go to Aurora and conduct a campaign such as he put on in Appleton this week.

Mr. Sherwood spoke 15 times in the city. His audiences totalled 1,110 boys. He spoke every day at the vocational school, at all the district schools, the high school, St. Mary, St. Joseph and the St. Paul schools. Mr. Sherwood also spoke to the men of Actual and Busbey's business colleges. Tuesday noon he spoke at the Rotary club meeting.

Isador Norton of Kaukauna spent Friday evening in the city.

Glad To Be "Pinched" For Invading Graveyard

"What's that white thing over there?"
"Gee, this is a spooky place."
These and a few other thoughts that made chills creep down the backbone ran through the minds of half a dozen Lawrence college young men who were treading stealthily between the white tombstones of Riverside cemetery close to midnight Thursday evening.

"Let's see. I guess this is it. No, I guess it must be that big one over there. Let's look over here."
And so the hunt went on. They were looking for the missing half of a tombstone inscription. Given the first half by members of one of the fraternities they were required to find the remainder as an initiatory feat or as a penalty for violation of frat rules.

Things were progressing nicely when the whir of an automobile motor was heard. Soon they could see dark figures coming briskly in their direction. Who were they? What did they want?

"What do you birds want in here at this time of the night?" said a stern voice.

The students were too frightened to attempt any plausible explanations, for they could see bright badges of police officers reflecting the light. They were treated a ride back to town in the happy wagon, and breathed a sigh of relief when they were permitted to return to their dormitories after explaining their weird mission and promising to report the next morning.

KERNS PEOPLE TO HAVE SERVICE STATION HERE

Definite announcement has been made by the Kerns Service Stations, Inc., Milwaukee, that an automobile service station is to be established in Appleton in the near future. Three sites are under consideration, final selection to be made next week. It is probable construction work will be started within 30 days. When completed the station will represent an investment of about $15,000. Tire, auto accessories as well as gasoline and oil will be carried.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR STUDENTS ON SUNDAY

A special train to carry students from the Fox river valley to Madison where they are attending the University of Wisconsin will be run on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad Sunday. The train will include chair cars, diner and parlor cars.

VIOLIN SOLO WILL FEATURE CONCERT

Fullinwider Agrees to Take More Prominent Part in Musical Program.

Prof. Percy Fullinwider, director of the Ninth Regiment band, is to render a violin solo at the free public band concert at 8:15 Monday evening at Lawrence Memorial chapel. He will play Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen."

Announcement of the director's appearance will be welcomed by many Appleton people because he is considered one of the leading violinists of this section of the state. He placed himself on the program in response to repeated requests from people who asked why they could not be favored with one of his violin solos. This will be the first number of the second half of the program.

An extra rehearsal was held by the band Friday evening in preparation for the concert. The training has been thorough, because the program is short, enabling the players to spend more time on each selection.

With no conflicting events scheduled for Monday evening, an audience is expected that will overflow the chapel. No admission is to be charged, thanks to the city fathers and the chamber of commerce.

George Striegel, Mackville, held an ice hauling "bee" Friday and filled his ice house from the pond on Fred Ziegler's farm, about two miles away. A large number of farmers assisted. William Milk, Twelve Corners, also filled his ice house Friday.

REAL BATTLE ON STATE DRY LAW COMES THURSDAY

Wets Hope to Amend Matheson
Dry Bill Sufficiently to Kill It.

(Special to Post-Crescent.)
Madison, Wis.—That both the wets and dries are lining up their forces for a fight to the finish in the assembly next week on the Matheson bone dry bill is now conceded. When Assemblyman E. A. Kenyon asked for a leave of absence Friday for next week, Assemblyman Clark H. Perry, Oshkosh, called attention to the fact that there might be a call of the house next week when it would be impossible to bring back any members who are absent on leave.

According to Assemblyman A. E. Matheson, Janesville, chairman of the state affairs committee, dry leader who introduced the bone dry bill, the dries can count on the support of 55 members if they are all present, while the wets will not have more than 44. Therefore both sides will make every possible effort to have all of their members here when the report of the bill comes from the committee for action.

Although the nine members of the committee who were present at the executive session Thursday night voted 5 to 4 for indefinite postponement, the two absent members, E. J. Johnson, Fond du Lac county, and Luther Roland, Vernon county, are known to favor the passage of the bill. Both are expected to be in their seats when the assembly meets again on Tuesday. An effort may be made to have another meeting of the committee. However, the attention of the assembly will be called to the fact that the two members who were absent when the committee vote was taken, both having been called to their homes, were in favor of the passage of the bill.

It is now planned to have the report of the committee placed on the calendar for consideration next Thursday morning. The first vote will be taken on the question of the indefinite postponement of the measure. If as the dries predict, the assembly refuses to indefinitely postpone, Assemblyman Matheson will then move that the bill be engrossed and read a third time.

That will be the signal for the amendments to begin to pour in and it is understood that the wets will make every possible effort to kill the intent of the bill, with amendments, and it is predicted the real fight will be on the amendments which will be offered one after another. The dries will attempt to keep their forces in line against all amendments while the wets hope to gain support for a sufficient number of amendments to take the "teeth" out of the measure.

STAGE

Nightie Night

One of the most brilliantly clever and laughable farces produced in New York in years, "Nightie Night" recently ended a six months run at the Princess theatre, under the management of Adolph Klawer, and will be seen here at the Appleton theatre, Thursday, Feb. 17. This comedy is described as a "wide-awake farce," and as a "naughty nice farce," but it is naughty only because some of the people in the play think some of the other players are naughty, when really the audience know that everybody was very nice, but irresistibly funny in their efforts to get out of the compromising situations in which they were placed by the clever actors, Martha M. Stanley and Adelaide Matthews.

COMMUNITY TRAINING SCHOOL

For Religious and Social Workers

By E. E. Emme.

Time: Monday evenings 7:35-9:25.
Place: Lawrence College, Main Hall.
Term: Opens Feb. 14, 1921, closes May 9, 1921.

Registration

Reports are coming in very favorably as to registration in this high grade night school. The result thus far, indicates that the registration will be higher than anticipated. The churches as well as the women's club and other organizations are supporting the movement very effectively. We are pleased to learn that so many of the active agencies in Appleton working on a constructive emphasis for moral and religious education feel that Christian character functions best when taught from the genetic approach, that teaching, of necessity, begins with the boys and girls. To train teachers, then, becomes one of the most wholesome vocations for any man or woman interested in Christian citizenship.

How to Register

Registration will begin at 7 o'clock Monday evening in Main hall at Lawrence college. Registration fee of $2 must be paid before entering classes, and all details in regard to the courses, corresponding professors, and places of meeting will be given at the time of registering.

What Courses to Choose

In electing courses the principle that it is not wise to elect two courses in the same department or field of knowledge should be borne in mind. Looking forward to the completion of the three year course, the pre-requisites are that a certain amount of work must be taken in each department of work. It is wise, therefore, that students bear this in mind in making their choice.

Those parents, teachers and others who are particularly interested in moral and religious principles of living for children and young people should think particularly of the course on primary methods and religious education. Those who want some phase of the Bible should choose between teaching of christianity and christianity and world problems; here again it is advised that no-one take both of these courses, but rather get acquainted with some other field of knowledge. No doubt many shall be interested in the course on psychology and principles of religious teaching. The course on supervision of social and recreation leadership deserves the registration of a large number. We may not be able to command the competent leadership of Miss Constance Johnson next year.

Speaking of the courses in general, we feel that we have here offered a range of subject matter from which anyone can make a satisfactory choice, who is interested in moral and religious education.

Text Books

On Monday evening at 7 o'clock, the text book for each course will be available when registration begins. The Conkey book store will have its representative there and will dispose of the books at that time. Students should aim to secure their text books at once as the supply is limited and a new order will be necessary.

General Assembly

Registration will continue from 7 to 8:30. At 8:20 the general assembly will be held on the third floor of Main hall in the Main hall chapel. A special speaker who will be announced later, will speak on some phase of religious education as it applies in Appleton.

At 8:45 the first classes will meet. Classes which are scheduled to meet during the first class period will meet for twenty minutes to get the assignment from the instructor and other necessary details in getting the work started. At the close of that 20 minute period—9:05—the classes of the second period will meet for 20 min. for the same purpose of assignments, etc.

Students

In addition to those who plan to take the work for credit, looking forward to the three year diploma, there will be those who desire to audit the course without credit. This may be done by merely paying the registration fee.

College Students

Quite a number of college students are planning on registering in the school. It will be possible for such students who have had some work along religious lines, such as Bible, leadership classes, teacher training courses, etc., to receive credit towards this three year diploma. College students and others who have such advance credit, should hand in a specific statement of same in application form to Prof. Emme.

College Students

Specimens of proposed signs for roads leading into Appleton were submitted, but none was approved. The directors asked the publicity and convention committee to study the designs and recommend the most appropriate.

Progress of the corn show was reported by William Fountain, chairman of the rural affairs committee.

He told of the advertising that had been done and said a new circular was being mailed, containing both a program list and an advertisement for the 2-day farmer market next week.

An invitation from the Neenah Civic association to members of the Appleton chamber to attend its Valentine dinner party Monday evening at S. A. Cook armory was presented. Heartly approval of the invitation was given and Secretary Corbett was instructed to get up an Appleton delegation. The dinner is to start at 6:15 and will be 75 cents a plate. Dr. Allen D. Albert, former editor of the Minneapolis Tribune and past president of the International Association of Rotarians, is to be the speaker. Mr. Corbett will accept reservations up to Monday noon.

STATE CONSTABULARY IS SHOWN TO BE A SUCCESS

What state police are doing in other parts of the country is contained in a bulletin sent the chamber of commerce from the Champaign-co. Ill. Farm bureau. The article recounts the results obtained in New York, Michigan and other states where a mounted constabulary is maintained in the rural districts, with all main highways patrolled. The plan is said to be a success, not only in the amount of fines collected for law violations, but in apprehension of criminals and maintenance of law and order in cooperation with city police departments.

C. OF C. LEADERS FAVOR LAKES TO OCEAN WATERWAY

Directors Urge Legislature to Keep Hirst as Highway Engineer.

Indorsement was given the lakes to ocean waterway project at the meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce Thursday. Secretary Corbett has been instructed to write the county's representatives in the legislature urging support for the agitation already started in Wisconsin.

Indorsement was also given to the proposed state chamber of commerce for Wisconsin. Secretary Corbett explained its nature and functions as he found them when preparing a survey of the subject for the Wisconsin Association of Commercial Secretaries.

Discussion of the resignation of A. R. Hirst, state highway engineer, led to a motion to use the chamber's influence to retain this official, who had been instrumental in securing good roads. Secretary Corbett was instructed to write all other Wisconsin commercial organizations and the county's legislative representatives, urging a larger appropriation for Mr. Hirst's department so he would be able to hold his men who had seen fit to seek more lucrative positions elsewhere.

Specimens of proposed signs for roads leading into Appleton were submitted, but none was approved. The directors asked the publicity and convention committee to study the designs and recommend the most appropriate.

LUTHER TO SPEAK ON CORN RAISING

Farm Institute Manager Will Attend All Sessions of Farmer Meeting.

"Features of a Good Corn Crop" will be explained by E. L. Luther, Madison, at the 2-day farmer meeting here Tuesday and Wednesday in the Vocational school. He will also assist in conducting the corn contest arranged by the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Luther is superintendent of farm institutes for Wisconsin. He seldom gives his time to any one gathering because of his arduous duties, but believes that the Appleton meetings will be among the largest in the state this winter. He plans to spend Tuesday and Wednesday here and is to speak twice.

Outagamie county has the largest yield of corn to the acre of any in the state. Mr. Luther realizes this, but believes it should not cause lack of attention to this crop. There are several improved practices not used in the county which he will explain. He will also place special emphasis upon seed. Samples of the corn grown here will be before him in the corn show, which will enable him to apply his remarks directly to the situation here.

One hundred letters have been sent out by the committee in charge, calling attention of breeders to the date demonstration to be conducted by Arthur Collentine, Madison. About half a dozen cows of good and poor types will be shown, accompanied by an explanation of how to judge an animal.

LINCOLN
Not many men are remembered by anybody but their grandchildren forty or fifty years after they are dead. A few carve out careers that are memorable, and of these only a select half dozen in the world, perhaps, receive universal homage.
Of these is Lincoln. He was a plain man, and the plain man takes him to his bosom, studies the story of his life as a guide to conduct, and thanks Providence that among the earth's millions of mercenary men, an occasional sublime idealist should be.
We look on Lincoln with a little awe, and yet with friendliness. Not many of us could have hewn to the line as he did; few could have accepted honor and admiration with so little affectation.
His doctrine of liberty set the torch alight in many hearts and gave new hope to thousands. An uncouth child of the backwoods, he became a masterly writer. A product of the small town, he learned to thrill the world with oratory. An humble, plodding youth, he rose to lead mankind to a new vision of brotherhood.
When the nation is full of unrest, when the struggle for existence and moneymaking is keener than ever before, when class antagonisms assume new forms, when reformers who do not themselves know how to live are telling others how the world should be regulated, it is well to pause and look back at Lincoln. The environment in which Lincoln was created is essentially the environment of today. We live in the same land of the same democracy, of the same opportunity. Our social, industrial and political life is more complicated but basically it is unchanged. Probably no other country but American could have given to the world Abraham Lincoln. We could love Lincoln less only by loving America less. It was freedom that made the Great Emancipator what he was. The same freedom gives every man a chance to make himself what he will according to his worth and will. That is why Lincoln means so much to us, it is why Our Country means so much to us.

JEW FOR PALESTINE
Late news in regard to the emigration of Jews to Palestine presents the proposition of "rebuilding Zion" in an altered aspect. In this country the proposition has been mostly looked upon as sentimental rather than practical. In consequence of the attitude of prosperous or fairly prosperous American Jews, it was expected to be difficult to induce many Jews to begin life anew in the far land of their ancestors. History itself tended to support this view. What the Ten Lost Tribes would have done if the opportunity to return to Samaria had offered can never be known, for after they were carried away by the Assyrians and "scattered" they were heard of no more, being doubtless submerged by admixture with other races. But when, about the year 533 B. C. the Persian conqueror Cyrus liberated the Jews who had been carried to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, only a part of them accepted the opportunity to return to their devastated homeland. In our own time comparatively few Jews were expected to seize the opportunity to live in the ancient homeland under British protection.
But it seems that the movement is already more extensive than was anticipated. We read that "all kinds of Jews want to go to Palestine, chiefly from Central Europe, Russia and Austria." Sir Alfred Mond, now touring the Near East, reports eagerness to such an extent that, failing other means of transport, Jews are actually walking from the Ukraine and drifting through Constantinople. Great numbers of young men are going, including university graduates. It is even said that "the difficulty is to restrain the immigration until the land is more or less prepared for the new population." If these reports are reliable and the movement represents more than the persecuted of Europe, the time may be coming when Judea will once more be chiefly populated by descendants of the tribe of Judah, which, unlike the ten tribes of Samaria, has never, in spite of its vicissitudes, been lost to the view of historical chroniclers.

FEDERAL TAXATION
That the sentiment of this country is overwhelmingly in favor of the income tax as one of the principal sources of federal revenue is strikingly indicated by a recent vote of the national council of the National Economic League. The vote was on a series of questions covering the most important taxation problems of the United States. In the council of the league, which is composed of leading men from all parts of the country, are such men as ex-president Taft, President-elect Harding, Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, Charles W. Eliot, former president of Harvard, and Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University.
The first question presented: "Should the income tax be retained as one of the principal sources of federal revenue?" was answered affirmatively by 90 per cent of the 530 members who took part in the voting. About one-half of the members expressed themselves in favor of retaining the present minima of taxable income, while of those voting in the negative, two-thirds are recorded as in favor of lowering the minima. A substantial majority expressed themselves as opposed to the present rates of surtax upon incomes in excess of $5,000, all but ten per cent being in favor of diminishing the rate. About seventy per cent are recorded as in favor of retaining the federal estate, commonly called inheritance tax. About seventy-five per cent are of the opinion that the excess tax should be abolished.
The proposal for levying a direct tax by the United States upon the site value of land, i. e. the portion of the value of land due to the presence and activities of the community and to natural advantages, mineral deposits, harbor frontages and the like, was favored by 162 and opposed by 317 of those voting. Nearly all of those who favored this form of taxation, are recorded affirmatively in answer to a supplementary question "If your answer is yes to the preceding question, should the federal constitution be amended so that such a tax could be levied at a uniform rate throughout the United States, instead of being apportioned among the states in proportion to population as at present required?"
With respect to a tax on imports, a majority (260) voted in favor of a tariff for the protection of home industries, 155 favored a tariff for revenue only, while 51 are recorded as being in favor of free trade, that is, no tariff whatever. Of the three remaining questions, the first is as follows: "Should congress undertake a survey of the ultimate effect of various kinds of taxes to determine (a) what taxes involve administrative expenses disproportionate to the revenue collected? (b) What taxes, if any, directly or indirectly increase the cost of living by an amount materially in excess of the revenue collected? (c) What taxes, if any, could be levied that would directly or indirectly reduce the cost of living?" This proposal is favored by a vote of 441 to 51. The second: "Is it advisable for the United States to pay off its bonded indebtedness as rapidly as the bonds mature?" was favored by 206 and opposed by 242. The last, "Should the federal power of taxation be used as an indirect means of imposing regulations in behalf of the public health, morals or safety which congress would have no power to impose directly?" was answered in the affirmative by 151 and in the negative by 300.
It is a simple matter to raise revenue through direct or indirect taxation. It is a complicated problem to impose equitable taxation and to insure the results sought in its application. After a century and a half of experiments we have not yet reached any settled policy as to taxation. It is a question if we shall ever effect a system that will be wholly satisfactory and enduring.

PERISTALTIC CRUTCHES
Is an enema, meaning an injection of water or some non-poisonous watery solution or some non-poisonous oil, of any value for cleansing the lower bowel or the small bowel?
The notion prevails that the use of some such peristaltic crutch more or less regularly does actually "cleanse the bowel." This notion is fostered for all there is in it by divers and sundry latter-day quacks and implement merchants and others who profit therefrom in one way and another. For example, one stupendous charlatan who makes a very good thing out of a ridiculous magazine extols enemas as the correct treatment of appendicitis, and no doubt many a simpleton accepts such half-baked advice seriously and suffers serious or fatal results from postponement of the inevitable surgical treatment for that disease.
If there is any popular notion more absurd than the notion that an enema of any kind really "cleanses" the bowel or is less objectionable than taking physics, I do not know what that notion may be—and I am now pretty well informed on popular notions.
Of course the enema has its proper place as a medical measure, just as calomel, castor oil, arsenic, morphine, ether, and exercise have. But no physician whose education compasses the rudiments of physiology imagines that injections "cleanse" the bowels of "impurities." I am sure no intelligent physician prescribes enemas for any such fanciful purpose.
The enema habit is much more harmful than the physic habit or the habit of constipation, for in nearly all cases constipation is purely a matter of habit. The frequent use of the enema produces a weakening of the natural responsiveness of the lower bowel to the stimulus of the residues which accumulate there; in some cases an obstinate dilation or relaxation of the lower bowel occurs as a result of this peristaltic habit, and then the victim is in a deplorable plight, far worse than any trouble he may have suffered from constipation itself.
The trouble with many of us in this country today is that we lack circumspection. There is a readiness to accept health or medical advice from any one who presumes to offer it, and particularly from any one who holds himself out as being some kind of an "expert" or "specialist" in some kind of a new-fangled "system" which is based on the appeal of sheer plausibility. "It seems so reasonable," when the "expert" explains it, you know. The crude old patent medicines are passing—have passed, so far as persons of fair intelligence are concerned—but the modern charlatan has something that brings him the dough in greater amounts than the old quacks ever dreamed of, just plausibility.
Hot Water Fiasco
I am drinking before breakfast each morning a pint and a half of very hot water, in which is dissolved half teaspoonful of common salt and half teaspoonful of common soda. It keeps the bowels moving better than anything else I've tried. Is there any harm in the continuous use of this? (Rev. M. H. G.)
I have taken before breakfast each morning a cupful of hot water with one-half teaspoonful of salt. It keeps my bowels regular, and I feel better when using it. A friend, however, tells me that the salt is likely to cause cancer later on. Can that be true? (E. J. K.)
ANSWER—No harm in either habit. The notion that salt will cause cancer is unfounded.

TODAY'S POEM
(By Edmund Vance Cooke)
LINCOLN'S FAVORITE POEM
"Oh, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal Be Proud?"
Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a swift-fitting meteor, a fast-flying cloud,
A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
He passeth from life to his rest in the grave.
The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade,
He scattered around, and together be laid;
As the young and the old, the low and the high,
Shall crumble to dust and together shall lie.
So the multitude goes, like the flower or weed,
That withers away to let others succeed;
So the multitude comes, even those we behold,
To repeat every tale that has often been told.
For we are the same things our fathers have been,
We see the same sights our fathers have seen,
We drink the same streams, we feel the same sun,
And run the same course our fathers have run.
The thoughts we are thinking our fathers did think;
From the death we are shrinking our fathers did shrink;
To the life we are clinging our fathers did cling,
But it speeds from us all like the bird on the wing.
Yea, hope and despondency, pleasure and pain,
Are mingled together in sunshine and rain;
And the smile and the tear, the song and the dirge,
Still follow each other like snags upon surge.
'Tis the wink of an eye, 'tis the draught of a breath
From the blossom of health to the paleness of death,
From the silded saloon to the pier and the shore;
Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?"

The Menaced Mussel
By Frederic J. Haskin
Washington, D. C.—One more American natural resource is seriously depleted as the result of careless exploitation. One more American wild animal is threatened with extermination.
Both the resource and the wild animal are the humble mussel, or fresh water clam, which leads a peaceful life in the mud at the bottom of nearly every stream in the country.
You probably never thought of this obscure creature as a figure in American industry, but if you have heard your wife complain lately of the high cost of pearl buttons, you have felt the mussel shortage. About five or six million dollars worth of buttons are made from mussel shell in this country every year. Nearly all of our beautiful pearl buttons originate in the mud at the bottom of streams in the Mississippi basin. Now the mussels of the best shell-bearing varieties are becoming scarcer every year. The price of buttons is rising, with the result that the remaining mussels are hunted with more diligence than ever.
The bureau of fisheries wishes emphatically to call the attention of the country to this situation. The mussel fisheries are the basis of a valuable industry in seven or eight states. And, if by proper regulation, the mussel beds were restored to their primitive richness they might constitute the basis of a much larger industry. Several states have awakened to the situation and passed comprehensive mussel laws. A bill has been introduced in congress providing for the establishment of a government experiment station where the propagation of the most desirable mussels may be studied.
Many Varieties
For not every mussel is a potential button. There are mussels in the bottom of almost every fresh water stream in the country, except those at high altitudes. In the Atlantic Coast streams, however, the mussel is a little thing with a thin papery shell. It serves no purpose except as food for wild animals and bait for fishing. In the Mississippi basin, on the other hand, the fresh water mussels grow large and have thick, pearly shells. Furthermore there are frequently real pearls of considerable value in these shells. In fact, the pearls recovered are worth in all nearly half as much as the shell.
This mussel-fishing industry is an interesting one for several reasons. For one thing, it seems to be one of the few American industries of which large capital has been unable to get control. Most of the streams in which mussels are found are navigable, and are therefore public waters where any one may fish. Any one who can get a motorboat, or even a rowboat, and an apparatus costing four or five dollars can go into the mussel-fishing business. From the Pearl River and the Red river in the south, near the gulf, to the Croix and the Black in the north, near the great lakes, and from the headwaters of the Missouri in the west to the headwaters of the Ohio in the east, the mussel fishermen ply their trade. Most of them are nomads, owning motorboats and roaming about the great Mississippi drainage in search of good mussel beds. They are free-movers and independent operators. They are survivors of the old individualistic America in which even a poor man could be his own boss and take his living from a bountiful nature which nobody owned.

The industry is a peculiarly American one in almost every way. The fresh water mussel shells suitable for button making are not found anywhere else in the world. The methods of getting them off the bottom are of American invention and so are all of the machines used in making the buttons.
The Pioneer
Nevertheless, America is indebted to a German for the origin of the industry. Americans themselves paid little attention to the mussel beds, no doubt partly because they had so many more valuable resources to exploit. It seems that a hundred years ago various fancy articles, such as cuff buttons and paper knives, were carved from mussel shells in Ohio, and even earlier the mussels were taken in order to search them for pearls, but with no thought of using the shells. In some Ohio towns there were factories making buttons from marine shells imported from the seacoast. These factories stood on the banks of streams which were full of much better shells, but no one ever thought of using them.
Along in the eighties a German button-maker named Boepple, received from a friend in America a bag full of shells which the friend told him, came from a stream somewhere about 350 miles south of Chicago, Illinois, U. S. A.
Boepple saw that these shells were of the finest quality for making buttons. He realized that if he could locate the places from which they came, he would have a supply of the finest material for making buttons. He thought he saw a chance to make a fortune, and the spirit of adventure was evidently strong in him. For he closed out his little business, which evidently did not amount to much, and came to America, in search of that stream, somewhere south of Chicago. Surely for a German youth with no capital, and unable even to speak English, this was a venture to rank with Jason's quest of the golden fleece.
Found by Chance
Boepple was soon out of funds in this country, and had to work as a farm hand and at many other hard tasks. As a vagabond laborer he roamed over the Middle West, searching for mussel beds as best he could. He found his first one by cutting his foot on a mussel shell when he went in swimming in July, 1887, in the Sangamon river near Petersburg, Illinois. He continued in manual labor several years, but during that time located several other shell beds. Finally he set up a shop, with some bits of machinery he had brought from Germany, at Columbus Junction on the Iowa river. He worked at odd times making cuff buttons, bridle buttons and the like. Finally he got some capital interested, and the first factory was started.
It is not of record that Boepple made much money himself. As is so often the case with the pioneering and creative type, he had little aptitude for business. But he founded in America an industry which adds annually its millions to the wealth of the country, and gives employment to thousands.

Q. What building contains the most elevators? A. M. P.
A. Unless recent building operations top this record, the Hudson Terminal Building with 50 elevators heads the list.
Q. How should one breathe while swimming? F. D. S.
A. Annette Kellerman makes the matter of breathing in the water very clear when she says: "Take a quick gulp of air through the mouth and let it ooze out slowly through the nose." In practicing one should take a quick breath, then submerge the head and exhale the air through the nose under water. When this is mastered, the real secret of success in swimming has been learned.

WILSON EAGER TO RETURN TO LIFE AS PRIVATE CITIZEN
President Willing to Give Up His White House Home Any-time Now.
Washington—Both President and Mrs. Wilson are counting the hours which must elapse before they can retire to private life.
The president realized fully when the election went against him that his work in the presidency was finished and that the several months which must elapse before his successor took office must be more or less a period of marking time.
He would have been more than willing to have given way to the new administration at once, if such a thing were possible.
The president's health is said to be improving daily.
From the beginning of his convalescence he has followed a regimen of living worked out to the last detail by his physicians.
Included in this regimen are a certain number of hours each day which he devotes to public business.
Barring a short period that immediately followed his breakdown and one or two short periods of relapse, there has never been a time that matters of the first importance have not had his personal attention.
And what is more, in spite of vicious rumors to the contrary, there has never been a time since the beginning of his convalescence that the president has not been able to bring to bear on public matters of the first importance, an intellect as keen as at any time during his tenure of office.
One of the things which he has not been permitted to do is to receive visitors and to discuss public questions personally with them.
The president and Mrs. Wilson will take possession of their new home on March 5, the day before Senator Harding is inaugurated.
He will ride to the capitol with Senator Harding and after the simple inaugural ceremonies will ride with the new president to the White House where he and Mrs. Wilson will be the luncheon guests of President and Mrs. Harding.
The career of Woodrow Wilson as a public servant, covering a period of ten years, two as governor of New Jersey and eight as president of the United States, will be at an end.
He will be a few months over 64 years old. Assuming that his health continues to improve his writings about the stirring times in which he played such a conspicuous part, will greatly enrich the historical record of the nation.

TALKS ON CITIZENSHIP
By D. O. KINSMAN, Ph. D.
Professor of Economics, Lawrence College, and Educational Director of the Wisconsin Society for Civic and Economic Education.
The American's Respect for Law
The pride of the American always suffers a relapse when violation of law is the topic of conversation. An examination of the statistics of our criminality is always a cause for deep chagrin. In 1917, for example, Chicago, with its population of 2,600,000 had 10 more murders than all England, Scotland and Wales combined; their population of 43,000,000. In 1918 Chicago had 14 more murders than England and Wales combined. In 1918 the number of Chicago committed assassinations exactly six times the number of murders as the people of London. In 1917, New York had six times as many homicides as London. In 1918, New York had more homicides by 67 than had England and Wales combined. From 1916 to 1918 inclusive Glasgow, Scotland had 38 homicides, while Philadelphia, about the same size, had during the same years 281. In 1915 St. Louis had 11 times the number of homicides as Liverpool, although the cities are about the same size.
A comparison of statistics on robbery is even more startling. Only a few can be given. In 1915, New York reported 328 robberies and assaults with intent to rob. During the same year, London reported 20, and all England, Scotland and Wales reported 102. From 1915 to 1918 inclusive New York city averaged from four to five times the number of robberies that occurred in England and Wales combined during the same period.
In 1915 New York city had approximately eight times as many burglaries as London, and nearly twice as many as England and Wales. In 1918, Chicago with much less population, had 2,146 more burglaries than London. Even St. Louis reported more burglaries in 1915 than were committed in London. Such embarrassments are almost without limit.
Similar comparison may be made with any of the leading cities of western continental Europe with quite similar results. But enough has been said to make clear that there was little exaggeration in a recent indictment of the American people which declared that "there is probably no

Adventures of the Twins
Olive Roberts Barton

THE WALRUS HELPS
Wicked people are sometimes very stupid, and the wicked wizard, the Boddil Jinn, who had taken Nancy and Nick prisoners in his iceberg palace, was stupid.

Day after day the twins played checkers, as the Jinn stood by, completely forgetting who they were, and the errand upon which they had started.

But outside, their friend, the walrus, waited patiently. He had promised to help the children and he had not been idle, although his great, awkward, lumbering form seemed so useless, and his long sharp teeth looked so fierce.

The Jinn, watching carefully to see that Nancy and Nick did not kick off the Slippers of Forgetfulness, did not notice the many dark forms that had gathered in the water around them. Day by day the great black, bulky things became more numerous, crowding more and more closely around the floating ice-palace. Nor did he notice

WANT MERCHANTS TO HUSTLE THEIR REPORTS
More speed is desired from the merchants in returning data for the information bureau at the chamber of commerce office, according to Hugh G. Corbett, managing secretary. Cards and other records are being prepared, but operation of the bureau is retarded because some of the merchants are not filing their information promptly.

An immense task is involved in recording, carding and classifying 20,000 persons who do business at Appleton stores, but the work is being pushed as rapidly as possible so the bureau can begin to function.

GREENVILLE FARMERS WANT CHEESE FACTORY
Patrons of the former Westgate cheese factory, Greenville, are uniting in an effort to have the plant resume operations. Its present owner, Fred Rappager, is occupying the building but has expressed his willingness to move if a cheesemaker can be located. W. C. Schultz, former cheesemaker has purchased a farm, and is no longer available, but he has been asked to find somebody else to take charge.

Idle condensaries are believed to be one of the reasons for desiring to start the plant, and farmers also believe it is profitable to accept a price a few cents lower than condensaries pay, in order to receive the whey with which to feed hogs.

C. L. Greim returned Friday evening from a visit at Tigerton.

THE BOOK OF DEBORAH
One Result of Chrys' Equality Was Her Distrust of Men

"If you want romance, turn to history," a great writer advises. I myself had no need of romantic literature in any form at this time. I had but to observe the persons about me to find more romances than I could grasp, romances which could not have developed except in America and in the present emotional upheaval.

Ann, with her perverse insistence on her right to live her own life in her own way, was the supreme exasperation of the new freedom for women.

Chrys, my lovely sister-in-law, was a magnificent example of the modern female cynic. Chrys was by nature an idealist, like Bob, but much of today's sophistication had made her a doubter of love. She was in intelligence and ability quite the equal of the average man, and she knew it, too. The one important result of her equality was her distrust of the opposite sex.

But although the pendulum of Chrys' emotions had swung far from sex attraction, she was not the unhappy woman one ought to have been, according to all the rules of the new psychology. When I considered the girls I knew, it was plain that Chrys was the happiest one of all. Having eliminated love from her life, at least for a time, Chrys had freed herself from much grief as well as much joy. Having no man to dominate her thoughts or to determine her conduct, Chrys was developing into a splendid creature.

If Chrys was so well content with her bachelor existence, and her independence, why couldn't Deborah be? Deborah Burns was one of the choicest flowers of the century. She ruled herself as people of the finest character always do. She conducted her life by choice, not by chance. She was the exact contrast to Ann, who passed her days in an emotional chaos, called herself temperamental, and moved always as her fleeting emotions happened to direct her.

"Better you take a lesson in being good from Deb," so I had once said to Ann.

"I might well pay heed to that advice myself," I reflected. "For I am one of a host of girls who today are torn between doubt and faith, who cannot follow the old ways of love, and who dare not trust the new."

And I told myself, moreover, "that no such conflict disturbs the average girl. Men just take the good things for granted, things like mother's pumpkin pie and love he accepts simply and comfortably. He doesn't fuss too much about his emotions; he is loved, or he is not, and he should worry."

It would be well for me, maybe for all women, I told myself, if I, if they could take their love life less strenuously. But I felt sure that I couldn't take my love for Bob and my jealousy of Katherine in other than the most exhausting fashion. More than once I had worn out Bob's patience in some season of storm and stress. I had kept him awake nights with my weeping. I had destroyed his business efficiency. As a wife, I had been a tyrant!

Confessing so, a bit of much needed illumination broke through my clouded comprehension:

Bob had rushed away from me after telling me that he had believed Ted Moore was in love with me! He hadn't been fair to me but his justice was explained. He was tired of my explanations and to save himself he had run away from an intimate discussion of our unhappy state.

Why had he not taken a little pains to understand me?

A horrid thought shaped itself: My husband was taking considerable pains to understand Katherine Miller and I knew very well that the tiger girl's mind was about as interesting as the interior of a vacuum.

LAWRENCE WHIPS BELOIT BY 29 TO 23 SCORE

LOCAL QUINTET EVENS UP SCORE WITH STATLINERS

Splendid Lawrence Defense Keeps Visitors Away From Basket.

Lawrence college basketball five defeated Beloit college in Alexander gymnasium Friday evening, 29 to 23. In one of the most interesting and exciting games witnessed this season. The score at the end of the first half was 23 to 16 with Lawrence in the lead. Lawrence managed to secure 12 field goals and 5 free throws, while 9 fouls were called on her men. Beloit basketed eight field goals and seven free throws and had nine fouls called. Wheeler played a stellar game for Lawrence, while Bushy, a former Appleton player, played a whirlwind game for the visitors, although Wheeler was their chief point getter. Both teams traveled at a fast clip and all the players gave an exceptionally fine exhibition of floor work and basket shooting. Lawrence played a better defensive game than Beloit whose defense was ragged at times.

Lawrence started the first half with a rush when Smith dropped in a pretty field goal. This was followed by a free throw by Wilbur of the visitors. Wheeler then connected with the basket on a pretty throw and followed it up with a free throw. Beloit came up and dropped in a basket from midfloor and Basing again counted. Another free throw by Beloit was followed by a goal. Wheeler dropped in another, followed in rapid succession by goals by Basing, Smith, and Wheeler. Sorenson then crept up from guard and made a pretty shot and another by Basing was followed by two free throws by Beloit. Wheeler again counted and Beloit again added one point to its score on a free throw. This was followed by 3 field baskets in succession by Beloit players. Wilbur again connected on a free throw and when time was called the score stood 23 to 16 with Lawrence on the long end. Kubitz took Smith's position in the last three minutes.

The second half found the men playing same fast game that characterized the first half. Beloit counted first on a beautiful shot from midfloor followed by a free throw by Wheeler. In this half the Lawrence basket-ers seemed unable to connect on the shots they had, old man hard luck getting into their camp during the rest between halves. Morrison was sent into the game to take Tech's place in the first five minutes of play and Smith took Smith's position at guard after six minutes of the second half had passed. Winkenwerder substituted for Laffin of the visitors in the last five minutes of play and Lloyd took Wheeler's place.

Fairchild of Fond du Lac was referee and ran the game in fine style. Naplechnak was umpire. Fred Bushey held the stop watch.

EXPECT WITTENBERG TO GIVE LOCALS REAL FIGHT

Coch Vincent has lined his team against Wittenberg high school cagers for Saturday night at Alexander gymnasium. Wittenberg has a good basketball record, and Vincent thinks the visitors will put up a real battle. Three or four years ago the Wittenberg high school won the state high school tournament. Dunn or Laughlin will jump center.

COLLEGE MATMEN TACKLE INDIANA "U" HERE MARCH 4

Intercollegiate Champions of America Will Be Attraction.

The University of Indiana wrestling team, which won the intercollegiate championship of the United States last year, will be seen in action against Lawrence college grapplers at the Armory Friday evening, March 4. Indiana has not met with a defeat in the mat game for the last two years and is the only team to have ever won a dual meet with the Ames, Iowa, team.

The Lawrence team has not met with a defeat this year and is claiming the state championship due to the absolute refusal of the University of Wisconsin to meet it in a dual meet under the western intercollegiate rulings in Appleton, Madison, or some other city this year. Lawrence has a stronger team this year than it had when it met the university team last year and this apparently has been the reason for the refusal of the university team.

The Lawrentians are aiming high when they tackle the Indiana team. There is still hope that the Wisconsin team may be induced to come to Appleton for a meet during the month of March which will clear up the state championship question in a more satisfactory manner than the present counter claims of the two teams.

The local management is planning to canvas the business section of Appleton with tickets for this event because of the very high guarantee required to bring the Indiana team from Bloomington. This will be the hardest meet of the season and the sporting public will be treated to the classic wrestling event of the season when the two teams come together.

STOEFF WINS HANDICAP MATCH FROM GEORGE HILL

Henry Stoff, champion of Oshkosh, managed to keep away from George Hill, Appleton, long enough to win a handicap match in Oshkosh Friday night. Stoff was on the defensive the en-

INTERLAKERS PLAY IN OSHKOSH THIS EVENING

Saturday night the Interlake basketball team will play the Diamond Match Co. team in the Oshkosh high school gym. This probably will be one of the best games of the season as these two teams put up an excellent game in Armory G on New Years night when the Diamond men were victors by a 20 to 18 score.

Next week the Interlake team will take a trip through the northern part of Michigan and Wisconsin where it will meet some of the strongest teams. They will play games with Antigo, Ironwood, Mich., Odanah, Park Falls and Marshfield. All of these teams are playing good ball and some excellent games will result. Nine men will make the trip. These men will go to Oshkosh: McCourt, Plotow, Gregory, Day, Rock, Kessler, Gardner, Loos and Welty.

MANY WILL HEAR NORDMAN TUESDAY

Marketing Problems Will Be Discussed by State Marketing Head.

Farmers from all parts of the county are expected to come to Appleton Tuesday to hear Edward Nordman, Madison, head of the state division of markets. He is believed to be one of the strongest speakers on the program for the 2-day farmer meeting in the vocational school.

Mr. Nordman took office two years ago, when the legislature appropriated $50,000 with which to investigate market conditions and take active interest in problems of the farm.

The position required a farmer. Mr. Nordman had been county superintendent of schools and successfully operated a farm near Antigo. He had also been an institute speaker and was looked upon as one of the most progressive men in the state.

He has had a chance to see the marketing problems from all sides during his service and his sympathies are with the farmer. The speaker will tell informally of methods which will correct some of the existing evils. There will be a frank discussion of marketing problems from the angle of state reform.

Mr. Nordman seldom accepts speaking engagements, and it is only through his personal friendship for Herman Weickert that he consented to come here.

Nordman's lecture is scheduled for 10 o'clock. The meeting will then adjourn to Dr. William Madison's barn, Washington street, where a dairy demonstration is to be held.

Too much kick in what he drinks, gets 5 days.

F. W. Remow, 32, giving his home as Menasha, was arrested Friday evening by Detective Joseph Schmirer at the Chicago and Northwestern depot after having imbibed too freely from the cup that cheers. He was arraigned in court Saturday morning and was given five days in the workhouse.

Appleton School Costs Are Not Excessive, Rasey Says

High School Principal Discusses Schools Before C. of C. Directors.

Interesting facts concerning Appleton schools and proof that their cost of operation is not excessive considering the standard of efficiency maintained here were presented before the directors of the chamber of commerce at the bi-weekly meeting Thursday noon at the Sherman house by Lee C. Rasey, principal of the high school, at the invitation of the directors.

Mr. Rasey quoted figures from the Wisconsin tax commission report and the United States department of education in support of his statements, indicating that many cities pay more than Appleton. He also showed how high school costs were gradually being reduced through greater teaching efficiency.

"Appleton ranked high for the amount paid per child for its schools in the 1919-1920 school year," said Mr. Rasey. "Yet comparisons will show that we do not spend the most and that we are receiving greater returns from our schools."

He stated that Appleton paid $61.82 per child enrolled, based on the 1921 enrollment. He then quoted these figures from other cities, all of which were higher than Appleton's costs: Kenosha, $73.86; Manitowish, $65.79; Oshkosh, $68.76; Racine, $77.78; Ripon, $64.93; Superior, $66.41.

Appleton with its population of less than 20,000 had a local tax for school purposes of $74,965, he continued. Beloit, with about the same population, paid $224,961; Kenosha with 40,000 people paid $449,854; Racine with 58,000 had a local school tax of $638,319; Sheboygan with 30,000, $265,639; Superior with 39,000 had $464,636.

State Costs are Average
Another set of figures compared instruction costs for high schools per student with those of other states. Wisconsin stood thirty-fifth on the list for the amount expended. Mr. Rasey stated, Illinois paid out $15 a pupil more Minnesota, $18; New Jersey, $21; North Dakota, $22; California, $41. The only states having lower costs were Virginia, Tennessee, South Carolina, Oklahoma, and North Carolina. They were mostly southern states where the school systems are poor. Wisconsin paid less than any state around it and just about averages with the country as a whole. None of the figures was taken from Ayres report, which has been subjected to criticism.

"Not only do our school costs compare favorably with those of other cities," said Mr. Rasey, "but Appleton schools are known to be thoroughly efficient. The high school was inspected by two men from the office of C. P. Cary, state superintendent of schools. His letter commends our work and contains a note throughout which shows that Appleton's schools are considered among the best."

No Overcrowding
The speaker mentioned the high school congestion problem, stating that it was proposed to build additional barracks at a cost of $10,000. The change to the session plan made this unnecessary. There is no evidence of overcrowding, a fact attested to be Superintendent Cary, and the increases can be taken care of for another year or two.

Salary increases in Appleton schools were not excessive, Mr. Rasey said. The state superintendent's reports show that 64 cities raised salaries an average of 27 per cent. Appleton's average was 35 per cent.

It has been found that Appleton high school has fewer pupils to the teacher than the average school. Last year there were 700 pupils and 35 teachers, making an average of 20 students to the teacher. Many other cities in Appleton's class average 25, and Mr. Rasey said he believed there was a chance to reduce the school expense here.

Cut Per Capita Cost
"We are accomplishing this already," the mentor stated. "Fifty pupils were added at the opening of the semester a week ago, but no new teachers were added. Adhering to the past standard of 20 pupils to a teacher, we should have engaged two more, but we do not intend to. We have thus reduced the per capita cost of education in the high school $6. By a similar arrangement next fall, it will be reduced $7 or $8 and at the close of the coming year by $10."

The speaker discussed the junior high school idea briefly, saying that such an institution should not be placed where it will beautify the city or where there seems an attractive site. It should be placed in the center of the school population, convenient to the largest number of children. He also mentioned the proposed school survey which the board of education voted to undertake. It is not to be carried out on as elaborate a scale as at first devised, he said. Its scope will be limited to particular problems of administration and expansion about which the people of Appleton are not sure. It will not be carried into departments that are already efficient and will not deal with teaching standards or classroom instruction, which are known to be of a high grade.

T. A. Langdorf of Athens, brother of Income Tax Assessor John Langdorf, spent Friday in Appleton.

Brokaw Hall Wins
In an interesting preliminary to the Lawrence-Belott game Friday evening at the Alexander gymnasium the team representing Brokaw hall won easily from the Kaukauna Colts. The final score stood 13 to 4. Score at half time was 3 to 1 with the Brokaw team on the long end.

The question was "Resolved, that the use of tobacco should be abolished." The affirmative was upheld by the Rev. Worthman and Melvin Trams. The upholders of the tobacco habit were Charles Lawry and Mr. Smith. John Gerhart acted as judge. After the presentation of the case by both sides the judge asked for six months time to decide the question and then asked that the cigars be passed.

Games followed the debate. Prizes were won by Ervin Paschen and Norman Gerhart. A lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

KAVANAUGH MEMORY IS HONORED BY EMPLOYERS

Splendid tribute was paid to the memory of the late Arthur Kavanaugh, former Appleton man, by officers of the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Co. at a recent meeting at Sturgeon Falls, Canada. Mr. Kavanaugh was superintendent of the mills before his death Jan. 6.

"I feel that in the death of Mr. Kavanaugh the Spanish river has suffered a distinct loss," said C. H. L. Jones, general manager of the company. "Mr. Kavanaugh was an excellent papermaker of very wide and varied experience, a man who knew the paper trade from the ground up and could get results."

Other officers of the company also expressed appreciation for his services and regret at his death.
